

October 15, 2024

Notice on the Recipients of the “Osamu Hayaishi Memorial Scholarship for Study Abroad” of the FY2025 Japanese Biochemical Society

Ono Pharmaceutical Co., Ltd. (Headquarters: Osaka, Japan; President: Toichi Takino, “ONO”) has been supporting the "Osamu Hayaishi Memorial Scholarship for Study Abroad" project of the Japanese Biochemical Society, a boarded incorporated association since the FY2017. It was established to commemorate the achievements in Japan and overseas of the member of the late Osamu Hayaishi (died on December 17, 2015) who made a great contribution to the Japanese Biochemical Society.

ONO announces that the following 6 people were selected from among 88 people who applied for the FY2025 "Osamu Hayaishi Memorial Scholarship for Study Abroad" by the Study Abroad Grant Examination Committee of the Japanese Biochemical Society.

Recipients for FY2025 (Titles omitted)

Recipients	Affiliated Institution	Research Themes
Ryosuke Ishimura	Department of Physiology Juntendo University Graduate School of Medicine	Development of Post-Translational Modification-Specific Nanobody
Motoyuki Ogawa	Bioresponse Informatics, Juntendo University Faculty of Pharmacy	Understanding of the mechanisms of tissue homeostasis through lineage tracing
Chiaki Murakami	Chiba University Institute for Advanced Academic Research, Laboratory of Biofunctional Chemistry	Innovations in the Molecular Mechanism of Diacylglycerol Phosphorylation: Effects of New Type of PLCs and Membrane Curvature
Masaki Yagi	Harvard University; Massachusetts General Hospital	Dissecting physiological roles of histone modification in tissue homeostasis
Kyosuke Yanagawa	Department of Genetics; Department of Cardiovascular Medicine, Graduate School of Medicine, Osaka University	Deciphering the role of extracellular vesicles in interorgan communication
Naoto Watamura	University College London Dementia Research Institute	Elucidation of the onset mechanism for tauopathy by spatiotemporal single-cell analysis in the next-generation mouse model

*Names and affiliated institutions are displayed at the time of application (July 26th, 2024).

*Grant total amount is JPY40 million.

Contact:

Ono Pharmaceutical Co., Ltd.

Corporate Communications

public_relations@ono-pharma.com